

Supervision Institute

Games People Play in Supervision

Presented by Jackie E. Pray, Ph.D., LCSW, ACSW

Helping supervisees develop is NOT as simple as it appears! In fact, it can be an anxiety provoking experience for supervisors AND supervisees. Various defensive responses, often classified as "resistance" serve a purpose in attempting to reduce anxiety. In this NASW-GA Supervision Institute, you will learn to identify the hidden agendas underlying these common supervisory transactions, and to respond to the challenging "Games People Play" in supervision.

With over 30 years of professional social work experience in a variety of settings, Dr. Jackie Pray has encountered a wide array of professional practice challenges. Her experience spans private and public adoptions and foster care, hospitals, academia, and professional association management. Dr. Pray often presents at professional conferences and regularly provides training for staff employed by the Georgia Department of Family and Children's Services and to social workers preparing for licensure exams or desiring to bolster various knowledge and skills. This experienced educator has been published in several professional social work journals including: Social Work, Health and Social Work; Social Work in Health Care; Human Services in the Rural Environment; and the Journal of Social Work Education. Dr. Pray received her BA degree from Graceland College (1974), MSW from Florida State University (1975), and Ph.D. from University of Kansas (1993). She is currently the owner and director of Social Work Unlimited, LLC.
